Bullion

Gold gains prompted by a falling dollar after the inflation report for the US surprised on the downside. The headline inflation eased to 5% compared to forecasts of 5.2% and the monthly rate increased 0.1%, half the market expectations.

Energy

Crude oil gains benefiting from a general dollar weakness following the US inflation report and concerns over tight supplies. Natural gas dropped on expectations that milder weather would reduce heating demand and with near-record production keeping pressure on prices.

Base Metal

Copper gains on supply concerns as inventories in London Metal Exchange (LME) warehouses plunged to 56,800 tonnes, the lowest since 2005. The copper supply market is still in significant shortage, and global physical inventories have fallen to the lowest level in 14 years.
